

Australia / SE Asia: Oil & Gas Success

Hamworthy Combustion Australia / South East Asia (ASEA) with head office in Australia and a regional service engineering base in Singapore has had its services high in demand by our marine and Oil & Gas clients. Our team of service engineers have been busy on project commissioning and client services as far as afield as New Zealand, Australia, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia and Singapore. Recent major successes are as follows:

Armada Perkasa FPSO Overhaul: Hamworthy Combustion ASEA, with support from the spares team in Poole, has won a significant overhaul project for the Armada Perkasa FPSO. This project involves a combination of control engineering, burner re-engineering, installation supervision, commissioning and extensive spares sales as part of a life-extension overhaul of the facility. The re-engineering of the controls and burners is due to the operators moving the FPSO to a new field with significantly different fuel gas composition. The overhaul work scope and initial commissioning will be performed at Keppel Shipyard in Singapore with gas commissioning occurring when the vessel returns to its oil field off the West Coast of Africa.

Australian FPSO Management: Hamworthy Combustion ASEA has been successful in signing a Long Term Service Agreement with Australian FPSO Management Pty Ltd. The Perth based company is the operator of the FPSO Four Vanguard FPSO. One of our Singapore based service engineers recently attended a service callout to the FPSO. Following the service visit, our client sent glowing feedback "We have had issues with the combustion control...But no more thank goodness...The boilers now are operating better than they have ever been, with no outstanding issues to be addressed". Hamworthy Combustion ASEA is establishing a locally based service-oriented organization to better service our clients in the region. We encourage a proactive attitude and technical competence – in the belief that it will attract and retain clients and enhance the Hamworthy Combustion's reputation of excellence in products and services.
